unique organisation

Supporting wildlife and its environment

The Zoological Society of London (ZSL) achieves and promotes the conservation of wild animals and their habitats through breeding endangered species in our zoos, carrying out research in conservation biology and managing conservation projects in over 30 countries worldwide, including the UK.

Watch your involvement make a difference

Over the last two centuries, ZSL has championed Charles Darwin's theory of evolution, pioneered the field research of endangered animals and set the standards for world class animal breeding programmes. ZSL remains an international leader in conservation and comprises five key divisions

London Zoo

London Zoo is the world's first scientific zoo and remains a world leader in zoo-based conservation. Today it is home to more than 650 animal species, 112 of which are listed as threatened.

Whipsnade Wild Animal Park

Opened in 1931 as the world's first ever open zoological park, Whipsnade is set in 600 acres of countryside with stunning views over the Chiltern Hills.

Institute of Zoology

The Institute specialises in scientific research relevant to wild animal populations and their habitats, which in turn is communicated through our Zoological Journals and Publications.

Conservation Programmes

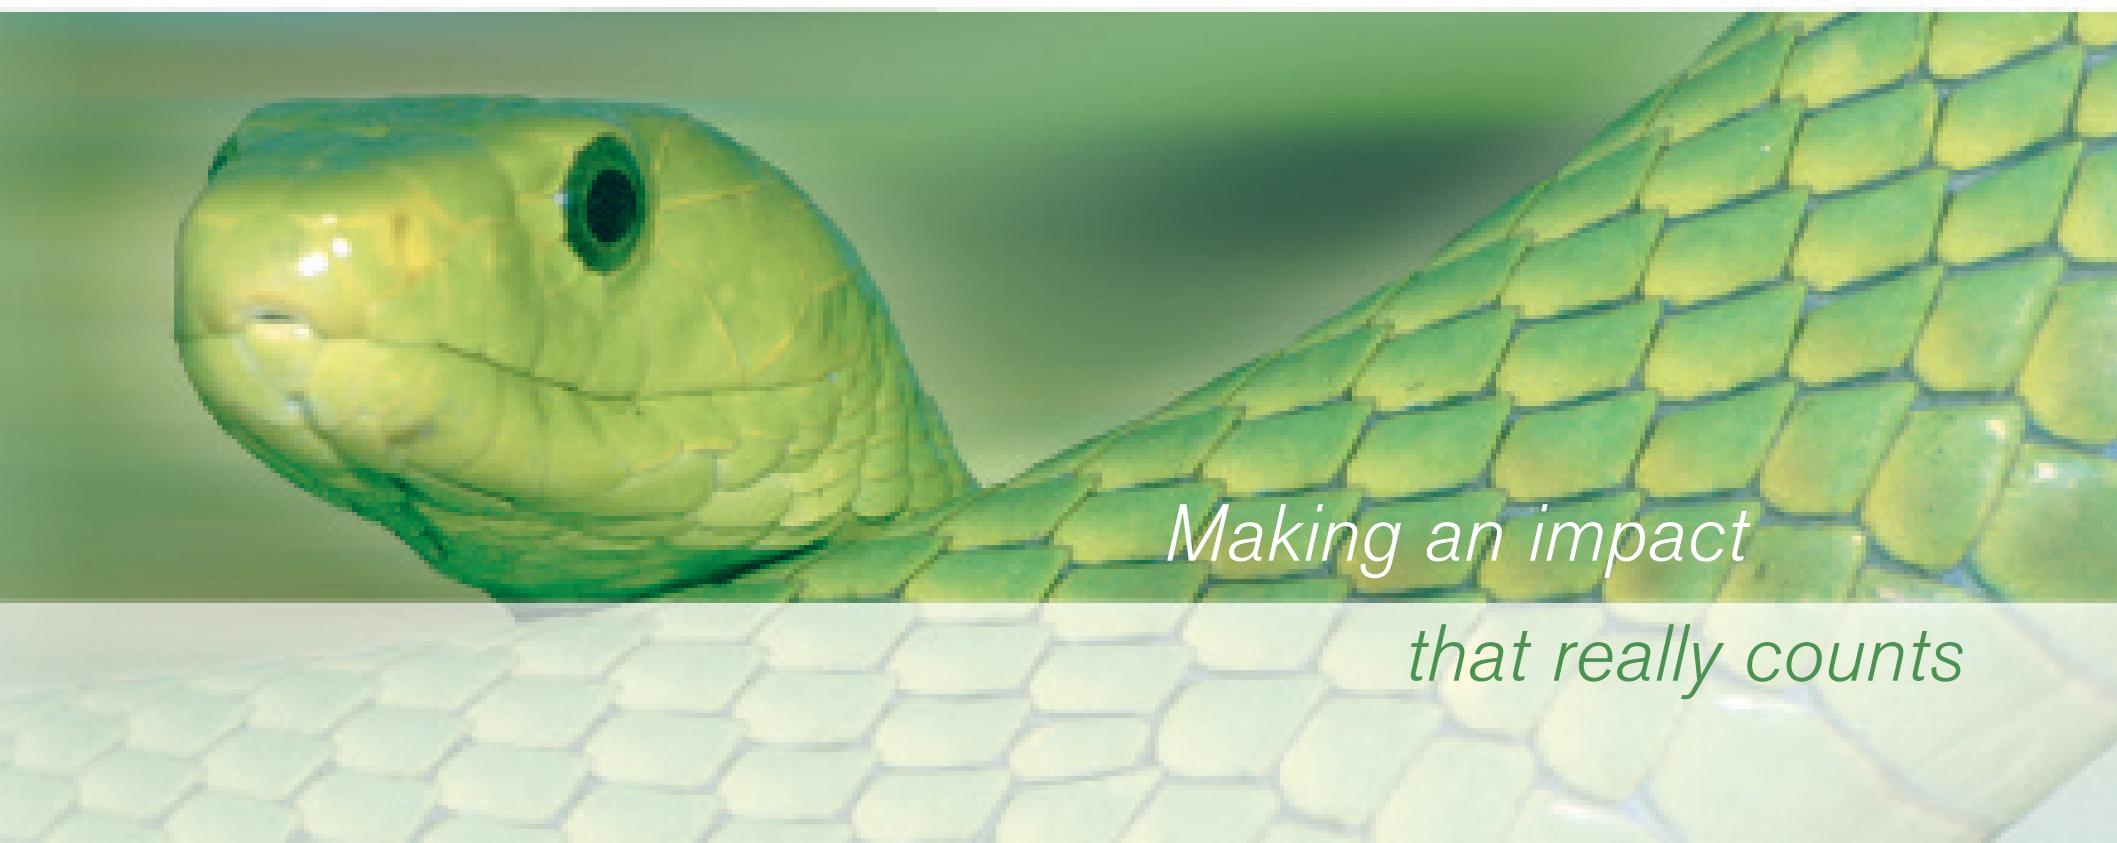

With a focus on providing direct conservation successes, ZSL has key field projects in over 30 countries, including the UK.

Library and Fellowship Services

Our Regent's Park Library houses one of the world's finest collections of zoological publications and journals.

Conservation in action

Making an impact that really counts

The conservation of wild animals and their habitats is fundamental to our mission.

Behind the public conservation work of the living collection at London Zoo and Whipsnade are a host of field projects, conserving species in their natural environments.

We interpret our conservation work through the living collection at our zoos as well as achieving real conservation gains in the field.

Our work focuses on six main conservation themes delivered through over 30 field projects.

- Deserts and Rangelands
- Bushmeat and Forests
- Marine and Freshwater
- Carnivores and People
- Island Ecosystems
- UK Native Species
